PASTIES

Michigan's Best List

The Detroit News - 4 Years Running

Made originally as a meal for the miners of Cornwall, England, PASTIES date back about 800 years. Wives would bake meat and vegetables in a crust and wrap it in many layers of linens or newspaper for their husband's lunch. It provided a warm and filling meal in the cold, damp mines. Pasties arrived in Michigan over 150 years ago with immigrants who came to work in the iron and copper mines in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. The Pastie provided a hot and nutritious meal that had good holding capacity and could be eaten anywhere. This full-bodied flavor soon became a favorite with locals and visitors alike. A trip to Northern Michigan is not complete without a Pastie from the Mackinaw Pastie & Cookie Co.
